Secrecy Veils Battle in Trap

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Supreme headquarters announced a "news dimout" today in the struggle for Dutch Arnhem in the battle to open the Ruhr, but German broadcasts said British airborne troops still held out there on the north bank of the upper Rhine.

Ten miles to the southeast, British and Americans fought through forest approaches to Kleve, northern bastion of the Siegfried Line, in a double-headed thrust.

The Berlin radio also asserted U. S. troops far to the south had launched a big push in the Epinal-Besamirant sector of France, apparently in prelude to an offensive against Belfort, 30 miles southeast.

As for Holland, the enemy asserted fierce German blows were intended to delay the "final Allied assault on Germany until winter, when these conditions would be most favorable."

At last reports parts of three or four Nazi divisions were hammering at the pocketed "Red Devil" airborne soldiers fighting west of Arnhem—until winter, when these conditions would be most favorable.

Amphibious trucks and assault boats of the British Second Army were ferrying a thin trickle of reinforcement and supplies across the upper Rhine to the airborne men, said the last announcements before Gen. Eisenhower imposed the news dimout.

This security step was designed to keep the Germans from obtaining useful information from Allied sources in the touch-and-go battle described officially as fluid. The British press termed it a "crisis."

Accounts of troop dispositions were restricted and speculation on developments was banned.

The greatest intensity of the battle was being diverted to opening and holding open a supply corridor through Nijmegen to the south bank of the Neder Rhine. The Germans were opposing that effort with SS (Elite guards) Panzer troops and more airplanes than they have risked for a week.

The Germans broke the supply corridor midway between Eindhoven and Nijmegen last night for the third time, keeping a five-mile stretch of the road cut for five hours before the British buried them out.

The lifeline was even thinner to the north between Nijmegen and Arnhem, and it was learned the Germans had held Elst on this main road for several days. Second Army supply columns were moving over parallel secondary roads.

British troops of the Canadian First Army captured Turnhout, 25 miles northeast of Antwerp.

Above Aachen, German lines suddenly opened and the Nazis invited thousands of refugees into No Man's Land toward the American lines. These were described early as non-German. It was not clear why the enemy gave them up, unless it was in bid of feeding them.

East of Aachen, U. S. First Army men met strong reaction to any push toward Duren on the Cologne road. Extremely heavy artillery fire rained there.

The see-saw tank fight for the Yverme plain east of Nancy waned to the south, Americans and French of the Third and Seventh Armies scored gains of several miles.

Canadians continued the knock-out attack begun yesterday against 7000 Germans holding Coligny. They broke through outer defenses and pushed in deeper over bitter resistance.

2—Boston American, Sept. 26

WESTERN FRONT—Allied forces today are reported to have captured Kleve, northern anchor of the Siegfried Line, and are driving through Duren to the south, while other troops have broken Nazi counter attacks east of Aachen. At Arnhem, airborne forces are holding out, but the situation is obscure.

Air Giants Again Hit Manchuria

By Associated Press War Editor

Superfortresses smashed at Japan's vital war industry in Manchuria today, abruptly switching American air power blows from the Philippines to the northern segment of the Japanese Empire.

It was the third B-29 attack on the enemy's mainland arsenal in three months. Tokyo broadcasts said the target was Anshan, site of Nippon's second largest steel works, bombed by the giant Chinatrust planes July 29 and Sept. 8.

One broadcast said interceptors of the Rising Sun were lying in wait for the Superforts and engaged them in "heavy fighting" as they came over in two daylight attacks.

Tokyo asserted its Philippines air bases, denuded by attacks of the flying arm of Adm. Halsey's third fleet, have been "fully reinforced by newly arrived aircraft."

Japanese propagandists, unshaken by the destruction of 906 Nipponese planes in the area in less than three weeks, described their Philippine air bases as "truly formidable."

A single Catalina flying boat found a Japanese seaplane tender refueling two destroyer escorts in Davao gulf of the southern Philippines and hit them all in a single bombing run.

On the eastern flank of the Philippines, Marines on Peleliu Island turned from frontal attacks against deadly Unmanned Hill and pushed up the west coast against scant opposition. Tanks lumbered to within 1500 yards of the northern tip of the island. Marine infantrymen, reinforced by soldiers, advanced through swamps and thickly wooded hills.

The Marines apparently were intent on encircling the elaborate chain of fortifications or cutting the fortress in two.

Buzz Bombs From Planes Hit England

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—German flying bombs, apparently launched from aircraft over the North Sea, were directed at southern England and the London area during the night but caused no deaths, it was announced today.

Reds Prepare to Attack Islands Guarding Riga

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, Sept. 26 (AP)—Russia's powerful northern armies hammered the final small pocket of German resistance in Estonia today and began organizing an assault on the two key islands guarding the Baltic Sea approaches to Riga.

The islands—Ristna and Osel—dominate the entrances to the Gulf of Riga to the southeast and the Gulf of Finland to the northeast.

On the west coast of Estonia, Marshal Gokorov's Leningrad army has captured all important ports except Virtsu.

The battle of Warsaw, now in its 56th day, brought no fresh news from Russian official sources, but Polish sources just back from the Vistula front line declared the Germans were being shoved back steadily.

German-Hungarian reinforcements appeared to have parried temporarily the Red Army's invasion thrust to southeastern Hungary.

The Russian fleet, bottled up during the siege of Leningrad and the Finnish war at Neva, was reported ready to fight for supremacy of the Baltic sea, long dominated by Germany.

Well aware the capture of Riga would give the Red fleet its best base for operations into the Baltic, the Germans clung tenaciously to every yard of territory in that great city. There was no indication of evacuation.

Officers of the naval section of the United States military mission to Moscow, who recently visited the Baltic fleet, said they were impressed with its power and that the fleet was fit, ready and eager to open battle. Considerable numbers of American-made small craft and equipment are used by the Baltic fleet.

ESTONIA—The Russian offensive to free all of Estonia sweeps to Haapsalu and along a 35-mile strip of the Gulf of Riga below captured Parnu. Drive continues on Riga.

8th Army Safely Across Rubicon

ROME, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Eighth Army has hammered across the historic Rubicon and Gen. Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean area, expressed hope the crossing "will lead, as with a famous commander in the past, to a decisive victory."

Crossing of the stream Cesar made famous came after German counter-attacks slowed advances both of the Fifth and Eighth armies. The Rubicon flows into the Adriatic north of Rimini.

Below Bologna, the Fifth Army was driving down several valleys running in a northeasterly direction after breaking the Gothic line.

Northeast of Firenze, Americans smashed three counter-attacks near Monte la Fina. On the American right flank, British and Indian troops captured two road junction towns.

Hitler's Office, Goebbels' Home Blasted by Bombs

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ

MADRID, Sept. 26 (AP)—Allied bombers scored direct hits on the Reich's chancellery, Hitler's Berlin headquarters, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' home, the Adlon Hotel and the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger printing plant during a raid Sept. 15, according to a traveler from Germany who was in Berlin during the attack.

The traveler, who arrived here yesterday, said the chancellery was "almost a complete wreck," and that Goebbels' home near by was badly damaged. Goebbels, he said, emerged unharmed from an elaborate bomb-shelter beneath his home.

It cost "two kilograms of coffee" in bribes to get through official red tape to take the plane to Spain even after he had been minister, foreign office, police and Luftwaffe (German air line) authorization complete with priorities, the traveler said.

"And the coffee," he added bitterly, "cost me 1000 reichsmarks a kilogram on the black market." He described Germany as "a nation of weary people who now are little more than mechanical men, too tired to do anything save their appointed jobs."

Berliners, the traveler said, with a rare spark of humor are banking Allied bombing planes for giving them more food by recent bombings, which flattened expensive restaurants, eliminating their drain on food supplies and enabling the distribution of more rationed food to housewives.

URGE BRITAIN BAN NAZIS
LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Lord Vansittart asked the government today to follow the American example and forbid any British soldier to fraternize with German citizens.

MISSING 12 DAYS — The search in the Reno area for Sylvia Sweet, 3-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rosamond Sweet of Rumford, R. I., entered its 12th day today. The child, whose mother is seeking a divorce, disappeared from a ranch outside Reno Sept. 14.

Broken Signal Jams 3 El Lines

Thousands of commuters and school pupils were delayed today when trains on the city's three main rapid transit lines were slowed to a snail's pace as the underground signal system went awry.

Cause of the upset of the signal system, Elevated officials said, was a broken air pipe just outside the Union station of the Everett, Forest Hills line.

The pipe was in a part of the main line controlling the blinker signals on that line, the Cambridge-Dorchester rapid transit and the East Boston tunnel.

The break occurred at 7:56 a. m. at the height of the morning rush hour and was not repaired until 8:56 a. m. by an emergency crew.

Meanwhile, trains on the three lines crawled along at 10 miles an hour instead of the usual 40-mile clip.

Cars were packed to the doors and crowds on each station platform tried vainly to find room to squeeze in but usually had to wait for later trains.

Girl Identifies Holdup Suspect

Picked out of a lineup at police headquarters today by one of the girl victims, a 33-year-old Everett housepainter was held on suspicion of armed robbery in connection with the holdup of the Associated Concessions office in Tremont st., which netted $7000 in cash and jewelry.

Judith Young, clerk for the firm, pointed to the suspect and told Lt. James V. Crowley she was "positive" he was one of the hold-up men.

The man was arrested by Lt. John Willard of Boston police and Detective William Boudreau of the FBI when he blossomed out in new clothes shortly after the robbery.

Fighting Man Knows Little Of Own War

By AUSTEN LAKE

ON THE ROAD TO BERLIN—I have lived in the foxhole and hedgerow society of the American combat fighter long enough to realize that he knows less about this war, which is essentially HIS war, than the Bostonian who reads the evening editions on his way from work.

The home citizen gets a broad-scale picture.

But all the front line doughboy knows is what little he can see—the smashed skeletons of German Panzer tanks, the little gray-clad groups of prisoners, the trail of ruined towns and the never-ending backwash of refugees.

He has no broader panorama than that, no super edition with neatly drawn scale maps, no digest of the global fronts. He rarely knows the exact location where he is, or the name of that nearby town.

He has surrendered his individualism temporarily, and has been resolved into an anonymous atom within the mighty force which is beating Germany down, and which is directed by intelligences as remote from him as is the village barber from the brain center of the nation.

WANTS HOME NEWS

It cannot be helped! For the front line GI's only source of information is an occasional radio and the week or month-old papers he receives from home. Old and stale though they are, these are especially precious to him.

Today I came across a rifleman sheltered in a built-in hedgehog he had roofed over with thatched wheat stalks. He was engrossed in a soggy paper dated July 21, and reading it right down to the want ads.

"No, tell with the war news," he said. "The war takes care of itself."

What he wanted was to find out the kind of jobs that were still open, and at what rates of pay. Also what movies were being shown at what theaters. And how much a guy had to pay for clothes. And what they soak you for dinner at night clubs.

Leat down for a cigarette before pushing on, and he looked at his watch, which was recently the

Lt. Col. Lodge Nabs 4 Nazis

WITH AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY, Sept. 26 (AP) Lt. Col. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., former U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, captured four German soldiers operating as a patrol, and the fact became known only when his jeep driver, Pvt. Henry Howell, told the story.

"The colonel was looking through field glasses and all of a sudden he told me to hop in a jeep as we were going to take some prisoners," Howell said.

"It turned out he had spotted the Germans a long way off. When we got close to them Col. Lodge pulled out a pistol, leaped out of the jeep and the Nazis threw their hands in the air."

Lodge turned the prisoners over to Sgt. Christopher Brady of Roxbury, Mass.

HERE FOR PREMIERE—Film star Carole Landis, recently returned from a 30,000-mile tour of Pacific battlefronts, was to arrive in Boston today for the New England premiere Thursday of the "Wilson" film. Miss Landis also will go on a GI hospital tour and appear at bond rallies.

Lost Gas Book Checkup Starts

Acting swiftly wit, announcement A-12 gasoline rations had been cancelled, OPA today launched a move to weed out unscrupulous motorists who in the past have falsely reported books lost or stolen in order to obtain duplications.

Local ration boards, it was learned, will be asked to check on all drivers who have made such reports in the past and efforts will be made to separate the honest from the dishonest.

Local police will play a part in the plan, it was disclosed. In cases where books falsely have been reported stolen, police records will be checked to learn if such alleged thefts were reported to police authorities, as all such thefts properly should be.

Those who are trapped will have some explaining to do, according to one OPA authority.

Meanwhile, it was announced the new A-13 coupons will be available for applicants at local boards Oct. 2.

The coupons in the new book will be valid for six weeks, from Nov. 9 to Dec. 21, thus entirely invalidating the present A-12 series. Present A-11 coupons will be valid until Nov. 8, but all such coupons unused by that date will be worthless.

The value of the A coupons in the new book will be four gallons, as compared with three gallons in the current book, but the total gas allowed to holders of A books will remain unchanged, officials said.

The change, OPA officials said, will bring New England into line with the rest of the country when the A-14 coupons become effective Dec. 22 and also block counterfeiters from flooding the area with bogus A-12 coupons.

Stars Here for Film Premiere

Coming to Boston for the New England premiere of the 20th Century-Fox film "Wilson" at the RKO-Boston Theater Thursday night, where they will make personal appearances, Movie Stars Carol Landis, Dana Andrews and Roddy McDowall arrived at Back Bay Station today.

These stars will be joined by George Jessel and Trudy Marshall tomorrow and will entertain veterans at Lovell General and Cushing Hospitals, and appear at bond rallies and service broadcasts.

Dewey Heads for Home After Fiery FD Attack

By LEO W. O'BRIEN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 26 (INS)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey headed homeward today after a scathing personal denunciation of President Roosevelt, whom he accused of "demagoguery," substitution of "risecracks" for jobs, and failure to prepare the nation's defenses for war.

MAIL'S THEIR JOB—Marine Pvt. Phyllis Burt (left) of Kittery, Me., and Margaret Higgins of Ipswich have the job of picking up mail from the recruit area mail boxes at the training base on Parris Island, S. C.

The GOP nominee's special train carried him to Sapulpa, where after a welcoming celebration on the high school steps for Mrs. Dewey, the New York Governor and his wife planned a brief visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orela Hunt.

Next stop was Tulsa for a series of conferences, after which the special was to leave for Albany.

With the end of his 6700-mile transcontinental tour in sight, the Republican presidential nominee last night told a crowd of 15,000 which overflowed Oklahoma City's municipal auditorium, as well as a nationwide radio audience, that:

1—President Roosevelt's record has been "desperately bad."

HITS MUD-SLINGING

2—The President descended to "mud-slinging" and "used" the tactics of our enemies by quoting Mein Kampf."

3—Countless American lives were lost because of the President's "sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war."

4—Statements by the President's own appointees and members of his party bore out charges that the Administration failed to prepare for war and planned to keep men in the Army after the war because it didn't know how to provide jobs for them in civilian life.

5—President Roosevelt is "indispensable" only to the "motley crew" which includes Harry Hopkins, Madame Perkins, Harold Ickes, Mayor Frank Hague, Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder, the "ex-convict and pardoned communist leader."

Taking the issues raised by the President one by one, the Republican nominee repeated the charges labeled "false" by Mr. Roosevelt. He said it had not been his intention to "take over" the Roosevelt record in the field of preparedness for war, but that he was impelled to do so by the latter's insistence that the charge of unpreparedness was a "falsehood" which not "even Goebbels" would have attempted.

"Now, were we prepared for war, or were we not?" asked Governor Dewey. "It is a simple question of fact."

The GOP nominee proceeded to:

- 1—Quote a statement by Gen. Marshall that in 1940, a year after the war commenced in Europe, the Army was only 25 per cent ready.

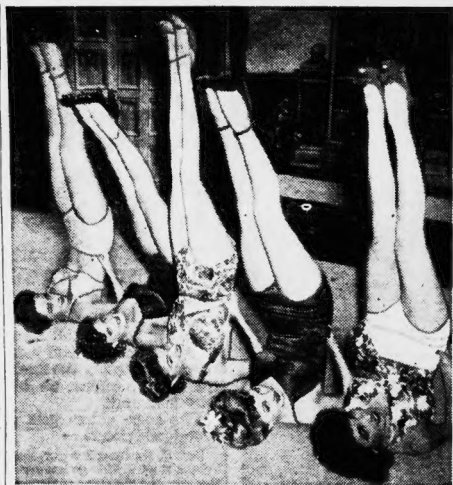

- 2—Quote Gen. H. H. Arnold as stating that the Army Air Force, on Dec. 7, 1941, was "equipped with plans but not with planes."

- 3—Quote Sen. Henry S. Truman, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, as saying on the Senate floor, four months before Pearl Harbor, that the White House was "to blame for the then state of national unpreparedness."

- 4—Quote majority leader Sen. Allen W. Barkley as saying, in his speech nominating President Roosevelt for a fourth term, "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready."

- 5—Quote President Roosevelt himself as stating, in 1935, that "there is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful"; in 1937, that circumstances permitted use of our money for roads and bridges "rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war."

Importance attached to the Dewey speech was evidenced by the fact it was carried by 288 radio stations, 164 having been added after Dewey decided to scrap his original Oklahoma City speech and go all out in his reply to Roosevelt.

Jeffers Calls PAC Fatal to Democracy

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (INS)—The CIO Political Action Committee threatens labor unions themselves as well as democracy with "disintegration," should it achieve its purposes, William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific Railroad and former rubber administrator under President Roosevelt, declared today.

Jeffers, speaking at the 70th annual convention of the American Bankers' Assn., declared he represents the PAC as an American citizen and as a man who has "carried a union card all his working life, and still does."

"No Political Action Committee or any other group or individual," he said, "is going to tell me or any upstart American in this country how to vote or what to think."

Jeffers described the movement as "a pernicious innovation that has literally snaked its way into American politics and in its active malignance eats the very vital life of our freedom."

The Union Pacific head charged that the government's recent Antitrust suit against the western railroads was politically inspired and actually directed against the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A. L. M. Wiggins, president of the association and a banker of Hartsville, S. C., warned of the dangers of continued heavy government spending after the war.

Democrat Repudiates 4th-Term Conspiracy

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Mary A. McQuade, veteran Democratic party worker, has resigned from the party's state committee and announced here today as:

"I refuse to be a part of a Democratic state committee which has obviously entered into a fourth-term conspiracy with the Communists and other rabble rousers."

Judge Tomasello Replies to Young

A storm of controversy was expected between state and municipal office holders in both parties today in the wake of a challenge by B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, of the right of such officials to engage in partisan politics.

Young resigned his posts as state commissioner of probation and member of the board of probation with disavowment of judges who are active politically. The resignations, to become effective Saturday, were given in order to participate in the Republican campaign.

Criticism by the one-time speaker was picked up at once by Judge Frank W. Tomasello of Boston Municipal Court, at whom Young's rebuke is said to have been directed.

In defending his right to preside at the Democratic state convention here Saturday, Judge Tomasello said:

"I am impartial in every case in which I sit. It doesn't make any difference to me if a man is a Republican or a Democrat, and I'll wager more Republicans than Democrats would want to have their cases tried before me."

Willard Luther, president of the Boston Bar Assn., explained he could not speak on matters of policy for his organization. He said the next meeting at which any statement could be made was scheduled for Oct. 5.

In a statement accompanying his resignation, Young declared in part:

"Any judge who takes part in party politics is undermining the independence of the judiciary. Such conduct is false to the traditions of Massachusetts."

"When judges wear the party label, litigants feel they must get on the party bandwagon to secure an even break in the courts."

California Democrat Solon Out for Dewey

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26 (INS)—State Sen. Joseph B. Thomas of Los Angeles, a life-long Democrat, today registered as a member of the Republican party and is supporting Governor Dewey and the entire Republican ticket.

Locked-In Lad Shuns Sheds

Four-year-old Anthony Lombard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lombard of Parsons st., Brighton, promised his parents today that he won't go exploring park department buildings any more.

The little fellow was accidentally locked for two hours in the storage shed of the McKenney playground near his home, intrigued by the swings, seesaws and other equipment, the youngster went inside to look around.

When he started to leave, the door had been locked for the night. A passerby heard Anthony's cries and notified Brighton Patrolmen Jeremiah McCarthy and Samuel Dunkley. They summoned Thomas Clark, a park department employee, from his home in nearby Saybrook st., and Anthony was freed.

Costly 5 Cents

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (AP)—A bandit, posing as a patient, took $300, a watch and a ring valued at $500 from Dr. Manuel H. Turek, 41, but when he stooped to pick up a nickel the physician had dropped, he got a bullet wound in the stomach.

Dr. Turek told police he grabbed the gunman's revolver when he bent over to get the nickel. In an ensuing struggle, Dr. Turek said another bullet was fired through a window before the revolver jammed. The gunman got the pistol and fled, joining a confederate, Dr. Turek said.

Spokesmen for the pupils told members of the committee quite bluntly that there is going to be more trouble if the new hour of 2 p. m. closing is not rescinded.

Two leaders from each of four high schools met with the board to outline just why 1000 pupils walked out of classes a week ago and ransacked through the streets, tying up traffic and stoning the home of School Supt. Thomas F. Pover.

On hearing the ultimatum, members of the board refused to discuss the matter further. Chairman Albert Farnsworth said the committee was acting as a jury and it was on this basis only that the students had been allowed to appear.

"Of course you know what may happen if your riding tomorrow is not in our favor," Edward J. Hogan, South High School senior, warned the board.

"I do," Farnsworth answered stiffly, but still refusing to announce any immediate decision.

Although most of the dissent stemmed from the extra hour of classes, Jean Harris, another student spokesman, told members of the committee she saw no need of physical training for girls. She said it made her sex too muscular and unfeminine, turning them into "boys instead of girls."

The story of how 850 Germans on three small islands off Marseilles were captured by 90 Marines, 10 of them Bay Staters, was disclosed today after the USS Augusta docked at Philadelphia after months of fighting in European invasion waters.

The Marine detachment went ashore on the islands of Ratonau, Pomeaou and D'If, and within minutes had rounded up all the garrisons of all three.

Trip to shore was made aboard a minesweeper in the face of heavy guns ashore, and there was real fun when the boys got ashore, according to Marine Capt. Francis R. Schlesinger of Franklin, N. H., in charge of the contingent.

watch of a German infantry major. He said, "Right now it's 7 o'clock here. That's 2 p. m. in Boston. And right this moment people are feeding the pigeons on the Common. Guys are hollering for taxis to take them to the ball game."

"Some Johns and their Judys are sitting on red bar stools soaking up fall cool drinks and cooking up the evening's fun. And still others are calling up their gals and saying, 'How's about you and me, Honey? Yeh? I might at 5:30.' Maybe it's a hot day and the Nantasket boat is full. Huh?"

LIVE TWO LIVES

In revenue the guy was taking a five-minute mental trip home. For indeed, any soldier who has been overseas two years or more acquires the trick of living two separate lives, one real, one false—the first his realistic life where he lodes lives, the second the imaginative one where he projects his mind. Don't we all do that? But not like the GI has learned to.

Take Cpl. Nicky J. Yarosz of 48 Garden st., Boston (back of the State House). His meaty self rides a dispatch motorcycle over here. But right now his spiritual person is in front of Gordon's drug store with the gang or in Dorothy Muriel's commissary where he ships fancy foods.

Or Pvt. Richard J. Powers, Jr., of 32 Birch rd., West Roxbury, a combat engineer who helped take Cherbourg. Powers the man is here but his mind is with five-year-old Peggy Jean and wife Katherine (Doran), or maybe at his old job of driving a truck for the Coddled Elevator and Walter J. Murphy.

And S-Sgt. Sydney Levison of 540 Warren st., Roxbury (near Grove Hall), who takes care of supplies, but who in spirit is absentia is lingering with the social set at Sam Friedman's drug store, or eating his salmon from Mother Leah's table instead of just having received it in package No. 8.

Yes, I can tell you where all these kids are today and a little something about their thoughts. For I've been with them while the rain dripped off their helmets in puddles and where they ate slabs of braised spam and succotash, and chorined around in the greasy guts of a laybitch.

There was Sgt. Albert C. Ferrante of 46 Hayes st., Framingham, who told how he planned to use his bonus money from Hodgesman Rubber Co., for "a maybe trip to Paris," and with the rest to get back the 10 pounds he lost in France.

And Cpl. Joseph A. Leggere of 28 Belmont st., Worcester, who wears a Silver Star for taking a machine gun nest in Africa, used to work for Charles Person's Majestic Auto Co., and is down to his last 147 pounds ("all bone n' gristle").

And Sgt. James M. Reardon of 516 Park rd., Boston, an ex-bar-tender for the Revere Cafe (next to the Metropolitan Theater), who finds the French stimulants "pretty tough" and is still waiting for the cigars wife Dorothy (Newman) mailed.

And Sgt. Fred B. D'Amore of 1107 Columbus ave., Roxbury, whose war souvenirs are on display in father Patsy's shoe repairing store, and who hollers to the Roxbury Crossing Club (Gene Canney).

IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

And Cpl. Billy F. Davidson of 379 Walden st., Cambridge, who was in the Cambridge Fire Dept., with Capt. Dan Walsh and is engaged to Helen Walsh (no relation of Dan's).

And Sgt. George E. Williams of 16 Amity ct., Springfield, a mechanic now, who used to be a calculator for the Springfield Shopping News.

And Pvt. Armand DiVito of 7 Bothwell rd., Brighton, a company cook who lately was a waiter at the Lucerne Cafe for John Biscope, who he claims still serves a 3-ounce noggin.

There is a weather-worn Chauteau in the cleared center of this medieval woods where an elderly Frenchman lives with an equally elderly wife.

The average American soldier, who has sometimes occupied the historic manor houses of Britain's landed gentry during their combat training period and sometimes slept in rooms made famous in legend, has no such privileges in France.

Here, they live only in the open fields or the woods or the orchards. Just the Luftwaffe decide to make unexpected night visitation. The big houses of this north country are not yet healthy spots and the Army avoids them as one might houses suspected of a pestilence. The fields and fox-holes are safer.

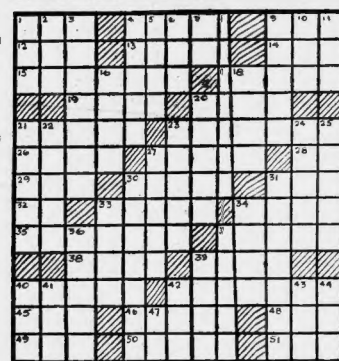

Nor are the soldiers permitted freedom of movement within the nearby towns, which are posted "Off Limits" immediately after capture. The best the soldier can do is gawk at the time-stained charms of the ancient towns as he rumbles through in his caravans. He returns the cordial greetings of the distaff members in the sidewalk crowds, then disgustedly rattles on toward the open country.

Many a longing glance is thrown over a shoulder on both sides as the cavalcade disappears. But there is some grisly work still to be done and tourist leisure will have to wait.

So the endless caravans snake on and on, tarrying briefly in these fields and woods where we are today before moving on, as they will tomorrow.

And this is where I met Cpl.

What Victory Fleet Day means...

Victory Fleet Day, September 27, 1944—third anniversary of our wartime merchant fleet—honors American-flag steamship companies for their management and operation of our great new Merchant Marine.

Of all civilian effort in this war, none has made a greater contribution to victory than the shipping industry.

As General Eisenhower said recently: "When final victory is ours there is no organization that will share its credit more deservedly than the Merchant Marine."

The millions of American fighting men who have won the battles of Europe and the Pacific . . . their millions of tons of equipment . . . are there because American shipping got them there—fast! In recent months there has been a ship sailing on the average of every 30 minutes!

When we got into the war in December, 1941, the United States had 1150 ships of various types totalling 11,000,000 tons. Now, less than three years later, the American Merchant Marine with 3400 ships, operated by private companies under the supervision of the War Shipping Administration, has swelled to the amazing figure of approximately 40,000,000 tons . . .

This pennant has been awarded by the War Shipping Administration to American-flag steamship companies in recognition of their services for managing and operating our wartime merchant marine.

comprising cargo ships, passenger liners, tankers, colliers, and ocean-going ore carriers.

Just consider what this huge expansion has involved.

Many lines were assigned to operate ships other than their own . . . often over strange, new routes. All facilities had to be expanded beyond previously-known limits . . . and quickly. There were ship and shore personnel to be trained by the thousands; new split-second loading and unloading schedules to be devised.

Everywhere speed was of the essence. Every day the ingenuity of management was strained to the utmost that the cargoes of war departed as needed and on time.

The American shipping industry, silently and for the most part unseen and unsung, has taken on the toughest transportation job in history . . . and won it.

In tribute to the management and men of our giant maritime industry, Admiral Land, speaking for the War Shipping Administration, says: ". . . this record has been made possible through the splendid, cooperative efforts of the steamship companies acting as our agents. We are pleased to have this opportunity to salute the operators."

1. UNITED STATES STEEL IS OWNED BY 86,743 PEOPLE

2. UNITED STATES STEEL IS OWNED BY 204 PEOPLE

3. UNITED STATES STEEL IS OWNED BY 222,602 PEOPLE

No. 1 and No. 2 are wrong. No. 3 is correct. 222,602 people own U. S. Steel. Among this army of owners is a remarkably large number of women shareholders, 97,106 of them. A good many shares are held by 1,246 charitable and educational institutions, and other large amounts of stock are owned by insurance companies for the benefit of policyholders. ▼

You'll find owners of U. S. Steel stock at work in stores, in factories and on farms, in every one of the forty-eight states. They're the typical Americans you rub elbows with on a bus or at the movies. Their stake in U. S. Steel is a good example of American thrift.

Text of Dewey's Speech

For two and a half weeks I have been laying before our people the program I believe must be adopted if we are to win at home the things for which our American men are fighting abroad. In six major speeches I have set forth a part of that program. There is much more to come.

During this I have been deeply conscious that this campaign is being waged under the most difficult circumstances and at the most trying time in our history is a defeat. Our national unity for the war and for the cause of lasting peace must be strengthened as a result of this campaign. I believe the conduct of the campaign on our side has greatly strengthened that unity.

I have assumed that every American and man in hoping that would be the spirit of this campaign. Last July, Franklin Roosevelt, in accepting his party's nomination for a fourth term, said, "I shall not campaign in the usual sense. In these days of tragic sorrow, I do not consider it fitting."

Last Saturday night, the man who wants to be President for 16 years, made his first speech of this campaign. Gone was his high sounding pledge. Forgotten were those days of tragic sorrow. It was a speech of mud-slinging, people and wise cracks. It showed the depths of demagoguery in carrying into this campaign the names of Hitler and Goebbels. It descended to quoting from Pearl Harbor and to reckless charges of "fraud" and "falsehood."

Bars Mud-Slinging

LET ME MAKE ONE THING EXTREMELY CLEAR. I SHALL NOT JOIN MY OPPONENT IN HIS DESCENT TO MUD-SLINGING. IF HE CONTINUES IN HIS DESIRE TO DO SO, HE WILL BE ALL ALONE.

I shall not use the tactics of the enemies by quoting from Mein Kampf. I will never dole America. Those tactics I will also leave to my opponent.

I shall never make a speech to a group of American people who are there to listen and discuss in a candid group. In the words of the prophet of such doings, "This has been Communism in America. We must never repeat it."

Two winning of this war and the remembrance of a people's life are far sadder to me than any frivolous language. I believe that Americans whose loved ones are dying on the battlefields of the world men and women who are making sacrifices for freedom of the boys and the girls who are daily affect our lives are discussed with the utter disrespect. This I shall continue to do with full consciousness of my solemn obligation placed upon me by my nomination for President of the United States.

My opponent, however, has chosen to wage his campaign on the record of the past and has included in charges of fraud and falsehood. I am compelled, therefore, to divert, this evening, long enough to keep the record straight. He has made the charges. He has asked for it. Here it is.

Said by FD's Man

An innocent description as a "fantasy charge" the statement that the Administration plans to turn men in the Army when the war is over because it fears they will be no jobs for them in civil life. Well who just said that?

Here is the statement by a top official of the Administration as reported in the publication of the United States Army, the Stars and Stripes. It said:

"We can keep people in the Army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are out."

NOW WHO SAID THAT? IT WAS THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR OF SELECTIVE SERVICE, APPOINTED BY MR. ROOSEVELT AND STILL IN OFFICE.

But says Mr. Roosevelt, the War Department thereafter issued a plan for "speedy discharges." You can read that plan from now until doom-day and you cannot find one word about "speedy discharges." It is, in fact, a statement of the priority in which men will be discharged after the war.

It does not say whether they are to be retained in service a month or years after victory. That will be up to the next Administration. The present Administration, with its record of peacetime failure, is afraid to bring men home after victory. That's why it's time for a change.

Now why does my opponent first describe what is a matter of record as a "fantasy charge" and then try to laugh off the problem of jobs after the war? He jokes about depressions — about the seven straight years of unemployment of his Administration. But he cannot laugh away the record.

In March, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt had been in office seven years. Yet the depression was still with us. We still had 10,000,000 Americans unemployed. These are my figures — these are the figures of the American Federation of Labor.

Is that fraud or falsehood? If so, let Mr. Roosevelt tell it to the American Federation of Labor.

By waging idle talk's warfare against our job-making machinery, my opponent succeeded in keeping a depression going 11 long years, twice as long as any depression in a century.

And the sadder thing is that today he still has no better or different program to offer. That is why the New Deal is afraid of peace and resorts to viciousness and vilification when our people want victory followed by lasting peace in the world — and jobs and opportunity at home.

That's why it's time for a change. Now I had not intended in this campaign to take over my opponent's sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war. It's all in the past — a very tragic past. It has cost countless American lives; it has caused untold misery.

But Mr. Roosevelt has now brought the subject up. He seized violently upon the statement that we were not prepared for war when it came. He calls that a "falsehood" which not even Goebbels would have attempted. "NOW, WERE WE PREPARED FOR WAR, OR WERE WE NOT? IT IS A SIMPLE QUESTION OF FACT."

In 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it could put into the field as a mobile force no more than 75,000 men. The Army was only "25 per cent ready." Now, Mr. Roosevelt, did those statements come from Goebbels? Was that fraud or falsehood? Those are the words of Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the

GOV. THOMAS E. DEWEY

United States Army, under oath. I quote again: "Dec. 1, 1941, found the Army Air Forces equipped with plans but not with planes." Did that come from Goebbels? That statement was made in an official report on Jan. 4 of this year by Gen. H. H. Arnold, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces.

Does my opponent still desire to use the words "falsehood" and "Goebbels"? Does he still claim we were prepared? If so, let's go further.

Four months before Pearl Harbor, there was a debate in the United States Senate. The chairman of a Senate committee described on the floor of the Senate the shocking state of our defense program.

Sen. Vandenberg asked the chairman where the blame should be laid, and the chairman replied, "There is only one place where the responsibility can be put." Then Sen. Vandenberg said: "Where is that — the White House?" and the chairman of the committee replied: "Yes, sir."

Who was the chairman of that committee? It was HENRY S. TRUMAN, the New Deal candidate for Vice President of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt's hand-picked running mate.

Again, in a magazine article in November, 1942, this statement appeared: "The reasons for the waste and confusion, the committee found, were everywhere the same: the lack of courageous, unified leadership and centralized direction at the top."

Again on the floor of the Senate in May, 1943, these words were uttered: "After Pearl Harbor we found ourselves woefully unprepared for war." Was that Dr. Goebbels on the floor of the Senate? Both those statements were made by Henry S. Truman.

Listen to these words: "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready." Mr. Roosevelt, were those words from Dr. Goebbels? The man who said that was ALBEN BARKLEY, your majority leader of the United States Senate. And where do you suppose he said it? Right in his speech nominating you for a fourth term.

Now, why is it we were not ready when we were attacked? Let's look at Mr. Roosevelt's own words in a message to Congress in 1935 he said: "There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful."

In 1937 he said: "How happy we are that the circumstances of the moment permit us to put our money into bridges and boulevards — rather than into long standing armies and vast implements of war."

But war came just two years later. It was in January of 1940 that I publicly called for a two-ocean Navy for the defense of America. It was that statement of mine which Mr. Roosevelt called, and I quote his words, "just plain dumb." Then, as now, we put ridicule instead of action.

The war rose in fury. When Hitler's armies were at the gates of Paris, Mr. Roosevelt again soothed the American people with the jolly comment: "There is no need for the country to be 'discommodated.'"

THE SIMPLE TRUTH IS, OF COURSE, THAT MR. ROOSEVELT'S RECORD IS DESPERATELY BAD. IT IS NOT ONE ON WHICH ANY MAN SHOULD SEEK THE CONFIDENCE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. THAT'S WHY IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE.

My opponent now announces his desire to be President for 16 years. Yet in his speech of Saturday night, he called it a "malicious falsehood" that he had ever represented himself to be "indispensable."

Let us look at the closely supervised word of the hand-picked candidate for Vice President. He said of my opponent: "The very future of the peace and prosperity of the world depends upon his re-election in November." I have not heard Mr. Truman repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt as yet. He waits to shed his Vice Presidency until they have served at least one term.

Here are the words of Boss Kelly of the Chicago machine, the manager of that fake third term draft of 1940: "The salvation of this nation lies in one man."

Was that statement ever repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt? No, it was rewarded by increased White House favors. So it was repeated again by the same man at the same time in the same place and for the same purpose this year: "The salvation of this nation rests in one man."

And was it a falsehood that one of the first acts of Mr. Roosevelt's newly elected national chairman was to announce last May that he was for a fourth term and that he was looking forward to a fifth term?

Let's get this straight. The man who wants to be President for 16 years is indeed indispensable.

He is indispensable to Harry Hopkins, to Madam Perkins, to Harold Ickes, to a host of other political job holders.

He is indispensable to America's leading enemy of civil liberties—the Mayor of Jersey City. He is indispensable to those in famous machines, in Chicago—in the Bronx—and all the others.

He is indispensable to Sidney Hillman and the Political Action Committee, to Earl Browder, the ex-convict and pardoned Communist leader.

Shall we, the American people, perpetuate one man in office for 16 years in order to accommodate this motley crew?

Shall we expose our country to a return of the seven years of New Deal depression because my opponent is indispensable to the ill-assorted, power-hungry conglomeration of city bosses, Communists and career bureaucrats which today compose the New Deal?

Shall we submit to the counsel of despair that in all the great expanse of our nation there is only one man capable of occupying the White House?

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WILL ANSWER THAT QUESTION IN NOVEMBER. THEY WILL SEEK THAT WE RESTORE INTEGRITY TO THE WHITE HOUSE SO THAT ITS SPOKEN WORD CAN BE TRUSTED ONCE AGAIN.

Know Our Strength

On battlefronts and at home Americans have won the admiration of the world. Under the stress of war we have thrown off the stupor of despair that seemed in the decade of the 1930's to have settled permanently upon the land.

Today we know our strength and we know our ability. Shall we return to the philosophy that Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed when he said our industrial plant is built?

Shall we go back to his seven straight years of complacency? Shall we go back to the corroding misery of lead-raking and the doles?

Shall we continue an Administration which invokes the language of our enemies and recklessly hurls charges of falsehood concerning things it knows to be the truth?

I say the time has come to put a stop to everything that is summed up in that phrase, "the indispensable man."

If any man is indispensable, then none of us is free. But America has not lost its passionate belief in freedom. America has not lost its possible belief in opportunity. It need never lose those beliefs. For here in this country of ours there is plenty of room for freedom and for opportunity and we need not sacrifice security to have both freedom and opportunity.

To achieve these objectives we must have integrity in our own government.

We need a new high standard of honesty in the government of the United States. We need a singleness of purpose, a devotion to the people of this country and to the gigantic problems we face at home after this war.

We need a whole-hearted devotion to the building of a people's peace that will last beyond the lives and friendship of any individuals. We need humility and courage.

With the help of Almighty God we shall achieve the spiritual and physical strength to preserve our freedom in the pursuit of happiness for all.

Blood Bank Aid Lauded

The American Red Cross
Baltimore Chapter

Baltimore 3, Maryland, August 23, 1941
MR. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST,
"Wynnton"
McCloud, California.

My Dear Mr. Hearst:

The Red Cross and the Army-Navy could neither ask nor expect any newspaper to make a more compelling and convincing editorial and pictorial appeal in aid of the Blood Bank of the American Red Cross than the Baltimore News-Post did this afternoon.

Your paper's timely and vivid exposition of the need is a WONDERFUL ENCOURAGEMENT to us, and cannot fail to help this PRICELESS SERVICE to our armed men at home and abroad, and which so sorely needs a powerful stimulant just now.

I cannot begin to thank you and your editorial staff on behalf of our Baltimore Red Cross chapter as I would like for your understanding and invaluable assistance.

With best personal wishes, and the cordial thanks of the Red Cross, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

SAMUEL K. DENNIS,
Chairman, Baltimore Chapter.

A MAJOR FIX?

WHY IS SIDNEY HILLMAN'S PAC touting the fourth-term candidacy with such enthusiasm?

The official viewpoint of the PAC is that it is an educational agency. But this seems a little too self-righteous and disinterested.

So cautious, responsible and objective a journalist as David Lawrence offers a different explanation. Mr. Lawrence declares:

"The reason why Sidney Hillman and the CIO Political Action Committee are working so aggressively for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt is their belief that such groups will have the inside track at the White House and the next Administration if Mr. Roosevelt is continued in office for a fourth term..."

Such an attempt to buy favoritism is not without precedent.

In 1936, before the Federal laws were strengthened, John L. Lewis' union made a campaign contribution of $400,000 to the New Deal candidate.

Later, during the automobile strike, when the White House was giving a semblance of objectivity and impartiality, Mr. Lewis rebuked Mr. Roosevelt for not intervening in behalf of the union, making stinging remarks about the obligation of those "who stop" at the feast table of labor.

In view of the quasi-judicial character of a variety of Federal boards which deal with labor, it borders on the scandalous for politicians to become indebted to pressure groups which are certain to be litigants before such bodies.

Whatever the high intentions of the politicians may be, it is against public policy to permit pressure groups to carry on activities which might appear to some to be in the nature of attempting to "fix" quasi-judicial bodies, subject to political appointment.

THE HATCH acts and the Smith-Connally act were obviously intended to provide the atmosphere of "clean government."

But apparently because the activities of the PAC happen to be in behalf of his political clique, Attorney General Biddle seems to find technical reasons why the plain meaning of the law should not apply to Mr. Hillman's agencies.

The smell is doubly bad for an Administration which styles itself as a reform movement.

On the Side By E. V. Darling

My dear, my better half," said he,
"I find I now must leave thee."
—SIR PHILIP SIDNEY.

THIS poem marked the first time a man described his wife as his "better half." It was written about 375 years ago. Sir Philip Sidney was a soldier and a poet. He was extremely popular with the ladies. So much so that many women decided to take his name after him. Charles Boyer

They did so even if the child was a girl. This was the origin of the use of Sidney as a girl's name. . . . How many times a day do you kiss your wife? Don't answer me. It is none of my business. I just wanted to warn that she may be checking on you. A young matron of California writes: "My husband kisses me on an average of six times a day. This is not enough. Besides, I frequently have to request that he put a little more romance in his kisses and be more like Charles Boyer." . . . One razor expert says to dry your blade so it won't rust. Another says to rinse your blade and let it dry itself. Which is right? I am much interested in shaving. On the days that I get a smooth shave I rub my face proudly and say to myself: "What a smart boy I am!"

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q. Why can one buy a nylon blouse and not nylon stockings when it takes more nylon to make a blouse? A. You have made me completely baffled. Lady, is there a man expert in the house? . . . Q. I have wagered that not one major hotel in Manhattan has a 18th floor. How about it? A. You lose. The Hotel Plaza has a 18th floor. Incidentally, it's not a vacant room on it. So apparently many people don't go for that "unlucky 13th" superstition. . . . Q. Do you really believe Johnny Walters accepted a bet of $100,000 and if so, who made wagers of that amount? A. Walters accepted many such bets. Commander Ross, owner of Sir Barton, bet that much. Also John Sanford, father of Laidie Sanford.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: The tip situation in our country is getting all out of hand. It is now stated certain theaters in Manhattan have removed the flat tracks under the seats so patrons will be compelled to check their hats, pay a tip and make the hat-check concession extremely profitable to the theater owner. . . . To a long letter entirely devoted to praising his wife a subscriber signs himself: "The luckiest husband in Chicago." This man's superduper mate is a country girl from Wisconsin. It was George Bernard Shaw who said: "The more a man knows and the further he travels the more likely he is to marry a country girl."

PSYCHI: "This guy Darling says he has a reader in Psych, Wash. That's a phony claim. I know that State; there is no such town in it," loudly stated a patron of the Stork Club. Then up spoke Clem McCarthy: "Listen, if Ed Darling says there is a Psych in Washington it is so and I have to buck that says he is right." The bet was made. Clem won it. This conversation was reported to me and I was touched by Mr. McCarthy's faith and loyalty so I called him up and thanked him. Said he: "Don't mention it, my boy. Don't mention it. I made the bet because of my reliance on your reputation for accuracy and also because I knew there was a place named Psych in Washington because I have been there."

BRIEFLY: Marianne Callahan of Chicago has been made a member of the My-Name-Is-a-Poem Club. Marianne was born on the date of the first anniversary of the wedding of her parents. Ever heard of anything like that before? . . . The most cars with dent fenders made in 1941 will get 22 miles per gallon of gasoline and those made in 1949 will get 25 miles per gallon of gasoline. Very interesting. But how about that car that in a test run made a car to get 180 miles per gallon of gasoline? Is that to be withheld from the public in the beautiful post-war world?

WRITES A Ferndale, Mich., reader: "I am 12 years old and wear an 8 1/2 size shoe. Is this a record for a girl? By the way, is there any kind of a club for people with big feet?" . . . An automobile expert says cars made in 1941 will get 22 miles per gallon of gasoline and those made in 1949 will get 25 miles per gallon of gasoline. Very interesting. But how about that car that in a test run made a car to get 180 miles per gallon of gasoline? Is that to be withheld from the public in the beautiful post-war world?

MOTHERS: "Mother Wore Tights" is the eye-catching title of a book by Miriam YOUNG. Miriam's mama was a show girl of the Florida era. The book deals with her experiences. Maybe some day Marlene Dietrich's daughter will write her mother's biography and title it, "Mama Had Wonderful Legs." That could be good, too. Too bad Gloria Gray hasn't a daughter. Think of the title she could have for her book, "Mama Did the Shimmy."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NOW AND AGAIN the criticism is made of these dispatches that they are not specific but general in their condemnation of oppression of the individual worker by the union system which Mr. Roosevelt built up as a political auxiliary of his party. General charges are protested, but, on the other hand, specific cases when they are presented in detail are minimized as trifling irregularities, painful to the individual victim but inevitable in a system embracing millions of workers.

At the risk of evoking the latter answer, I should like to present, nevertheless, the case of an American worker on the San Francisco docks as he told it to me during my brief visit there with Governor Dewey's campaign party.

The man identified himself as L. K. Hyde, until recently a clerk employed to check cargoes going into ships bound for the war in the Pacific. He was drawing $139.30 for a seven-day week for work which would not tax the intelligence of an eighth grade alumnus nor the strength of a girl. Mr. Hyde was a member of the Ship Clerks' Association, a subsidiary of the Longshoremen's Union of the CIO, whose president is Harry Bridges. After a long and expensive investigation and hearing, paid for by the loyal American people through their taxes, a deportation order was issued against Bridges, but it has been suspended in time, if President Roosevelt should be re-elected, it will be cancelled and, like the Russian Communist wife of Earl Browder, who also was ordered out of the country, Bridges will be allowed to go to Canada and "re-enter" and presently to acquire citizenship.

MR. HYDE, like many other Americans, has been compelled to pay two assessments of one dollar each for a "defense fund" for Bridges, although Bridges' defense was conducted by the Communists employing the services of their own legal experts and those would appear to have been only negligible expenses. Similar "defense" funds, collected in all unions under Communist control ostensibly in the behalf of various persecuted individual comrades, have become Communist Party funds.

On Sept. 12, Mr. Hyde received a letter from the executive committee of his local ordering him to appear at the next meeting and answer charges of "ununion-like conduct" on the job. There was attached a copy of a letter from the business agent to the secretary which said two fellow workers on the dock had heard Mr. Hyde make "several statements" regarding union and their activities which we do not consider proper from anyone seeking membership. Mr. Hyde was not a full member but a probationer working under permit on a vital war job in defense of his own country.

Mr. Hyde appeared and was charged with having declared his intention to give $5 to Tom Dewey's campaign fund because he had received two notices of assessments of one dollar each for Mr. Roosevelt's campaign fund, collected by Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee, the current guise of the Communist Party. These contributions to Mr. Roosevelt's campaign fund were compulsory. All workers failing to contribute to the fourth term campaign were subject to dismissal from their vital war jobs at a time when Paul McNutt, the war manpower commissioner, has issued an illegal order freezing men and women to their jobs and forbidding them to transfer without permission of the Roosevelt government.

MR. HYDE'S defense seems to have been disrupted and desultory. He merely said he was opposed to the compulsory campaign payments to President Roosevelt's campaign fund and added "Nobody is going to tell me how to vote. My people have been in this country since 1633."

At that, one of the union officials said: "Oh, so you think you're better than we are," and Mr. Hyde made no answer.

A few days later, after he had worked three hours, a business agent put him off the job and cancelled his union permit. This means he cannot work in any other war job under CIO control because a man dismissed for "ununion-like conduct" in one CIO union is ineligible for membership, or even temporary status under permit, in another. In many shops he would be barred from employment in his old profession, that of reporter, by exclusive contracts between the publishers and the Newspaper Guild, of which Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is a member.

So this is just a petty case, painful to the individual who thus is subtracted from the insufficient sum of civilian war manpower because he exercised a right he thought his American ancestors had bequeathed him in the Constitution, to speak freely, though not obstreperously, and to indicate his preference in an election of a President of the United States. But, of course, such trivial individual cases are inevitable in a system embracing millions.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 26—The great American musical, "Show Boat," is a next year's promise. I talked with Arthur Freed, who is getting ready to produce it with Judy Garland as Magnolia and Gene Kelly as the gambler. He said: "I consider it the finest American operetta ever written and the music by Jerome Kerns will live forever, and so will Edna Ferber's romantic story."

Judy Garland
Kerns will live forever, and so will Edna Ferber's romantic story.

In fact, "Show Boat" is becoming as much of a perennial as Uncle Tom's Cabin. It's been done twice, first with Laura La Plante in silent days, and then Irene Dunne.

TELEGRAMS and telephone calls like mad came from my colleague, Paul Jones, on the Atlanta Constitution, asking for information on Bette Davis. Bette, it seems, popped up in Atlanta with her sister and her maid. The report was that young Cpl. Louis Riley, Jr., in whom she is interested, is stationed near there. At any rate, he has been her escort to several Atlanta parties. Cpl. Riley was Bette's escort at the Jack Warner party last August. He is a personable young man and everyone who met him liked him.

IT'S AMAZING that Gary Cooper, who usually gets what he wants, wants Preston Sturges to direct this cowboy movie for International—and Preston makes no bones about hating to direct "big" stars. Ofhand I would say that the deal doesn't look as luscious since Sturges is soon starting his own picture with Eddie Bracken and he has a Howard Hughes contract.

HERE IS a surprising bit of news. I heard through the grapevine that Howard Hughes is contemplating bringing back "The Outlaw" and reshooting certain scenes that were found objectionable. Up to now he has steadfastly refused to change a foot of the film. There are parts that could be reshot with great benefit to the picture. Jane Russell is here and available, but I don't suppose Jack Beutel, who is with the armed forces, would be free.

I DON'T NEED an enthusiastic P. A. to tell me little June Presser bore records on her recent personal appearance tour. Today I learned she's been signed by Columbia for the top comedy role in "Let's Go Steady."

MARC CONNOLLY swears all his romantic interests are purely platonic, even his supposed one with Mary Zava. Maybe he is telling the truth but I happen to know he finds Christofa Simms very good company and a very intelligent conversationalist. Christofa, red-haired David Selznick discovered, although only 19, has a Ph.D. in archeology from University of Wisconsin, speaks five languages and actually wrote her own screen test. At 11 she had the I. Q. of a 30-year-old person, so you can see why she is one of Hollywood's unusual personalities.

THE SNEAK of "None But the Lonely Heart" revealed Clifford Odets has turned in a fine job of direction. I was interested to hear "Sister Carrie," Theodore Dreiser's book, written so long ago and bought so many years ago for the movies, is being turned over to Odets. He is adapting it to the screen. He is also writing an untitled picture for Cary Grant and will direct his own original, "Welcome to the City."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Don Mich, editor of Look magazine, is expected to wed Isabelle Miller of the same publication; Charles Laughlin gets his American citizenship papers in two weeks; Loretta Young and Lt. Col. Tom Lewis have bought; Constance Bennett's Holmby Hills estate, Connie is moving into the Anita Loos beachhouse, recently purchased by the Darryl Zanuck. The Bennett house has ample room for a nursery for Christopher Paul; Jean Wallace Tone and her young son have returned from Buffalo. Franchot is remaining to look after his father's estate; Arthur Pederson, husband of the late Rachel Fields, the author, is suing; Lucille Ball is back from Las Vegas, where she went immediately after parting from Desi Arnaz. She is selling her ranch; Mary Lou Cook, of the Merry Macs, now married to Lt. Carl Bagee, is the mother of a boy.

Washington Scene -:- By George Dixon

Translated by King Features Synd. Inc. in whole or Part Strictly Fictional.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—An epidemic of social significance seems to have broken out all over the country, if not the world, and I wish I could discover a specific to cure it.

The most unlikely people, in the most unlikely places, go socially significant before you can stop them. They don't even rattle three times in warning. The first thing you know they have struck, and you are kept busy removing pieces of splintered fang for a week after.

Gypsy Rose Lee
You don't have to move among political pundits to get it. The menace lurks everywhere. I would not be surprised if our neighbor's year-old infant came crawling in some evening to inform us that life is grim and life is earnest.

I hate to say this, because it seems like indicting too large a slice of humanity, but you can get all the social significance your system will absorb without ever meeting Soon-to-Be Former Vice-President Wallace.

IT IS getting to the point where you even hesitate to make passes at a dame in a taxicab for fear she will turn your advances aside by asking if you have had any good social trends lately.

Right in the middle of almost any movie or stage play, one of the actors is almost sure to step out of character and inform the audience there will be no place for frivolous goings-on, such as pinching the parlor-maid, in the brave new world to come.

In the semi-final stages of a strip-tease and tell me the vital issue of the day is the brotherhood of man.

The entertainment field is particularly guilty. Movie actors sometimes stop talking about themselves for seconds at a time to inject gems of thought on postwar planning.

Capt. Burgess Meredith, who is married to Paulette Goddard, has gotten to the point where he hardly ever just chats any more; he lectures. He almost had Lt. Col. Rex Smith, the famous magazine editor, in tears over the poor, down-trodden something or other a few evenings ago, although Lt. Col. Smith could have pulled rank on him and stopped it.

And any actor nowadays who plays a social significant role goes beyond redemption. When Alexander Knox was in Washington recently he was being Woodrow Wilson all over the place and expounding Wilsonian doctrine.

WASHINGTON, naturally, has social signifiers on every street corner. Every other party you meet seems concerned with various phases of it, and sometimes even interstellar relations.

I got such an overdose of it a few nights ago that I packed my opium layout and sneaked up to New York. I thought, in a city as big as that, I could hide out from social significance and international relations for a few days.

By what I thought was a great and glorious piece of luck I ran into Mr. Joe E. Lewis, the very funny comedian. I told him I was seeking sanctuary. "That is easily attended to," said Mr. Lewis. "By an amazing coincidence I am appearing nightly in a joint—I mean a high-class establishment—known as the Copacabana. You will find no social significance there. The management makes you check it at the door along with your rubbers."

I TOOK Mr. Lewis at his word, because he is the soul of integrity, if not worse. But a few minutes later I began to wonder if Mr. Lewis had seen his own show.

A group of personable young ladies came out and announced they were Latin-Americans. They strove to look very weebegone and decreed the sad poverty which was their lot.

Each girl in turn told how tough things were, including a young lady who said she worked in a "very bad place."

They went sorrowfully away but in a minute they were gay and smiling. To my horror and consternation, they disclosed this pleasant metamorphosis had been wrought by Mr. Nelson Rockefeller!

Each girl again took the mike and told how her lot had been improved by Mr. Rockefeller's largesse. They went down the line recounting how our Latin-American relations had turned woe to happiness.

This gladsome change even went for the young lady who said she had worked in a "very bad place." She was still working there, she said, but at much more handsome remuneration!

ALL I GOT to ask you, Mr. Lewis, is this: Whither are we drifting?

Utility Beef Good in Stews

By MARTHA LEE

A BEEF STEW is good news in any American home. With utility beef now ration-free, this economical and tasty dish should become a regular standby on the menu. Stewing is one of the best ways to prepare utility beef.

Here are the directions for a Utility Beef Stew:

Dredge the meat with seasoned flour, and brown slowly in hot fat. Add liquid to cover the meat. Add seasonings. Cover the pan tightly, and allow the stew to simmer (not boil) a good, long time—about 3 hours for this type of beef. Add vegetables, if desired, just long enough before the meat is tender to cook them through.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH

$\frac{1}{2}$ lb. beef chuck
Lard or drippings
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt
Pepper
3 onions, chopped
1 No. 2½ can tomatoes
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. allspice
1 tsp. paprika
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. cloves
1 bay leaf
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup beef stock
9 small potatoes, peeled

Cut beef into cubes and brown in fat. Add remaining ingredients, except potatoes, cover closely and simmer 2 hours or until meat is beginning to be tender. Remove bay leaf. Add potatoes; cook until tender. Thicken gravy or remove meat and vegetables and cook it down until slightly thickened. Pour back over meat and vegetables.

(The cooking time given in this recipe is for utility beef. Choice and good grades of beef require less time.)

BEEFSTEAK AND KIDNEY PIE

1 lb. beef kidney
Biscuit dough
1 lb. chuck steak
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water, soup stock or tomato juice

Lard or drippings for browning

Salt and pepper
Wash kidney thoroughly, slice and cut into pieces; let stand in water until steak is ready. Cut steak into strips and brown in lard or drippings. Place meat in saucepan; add liquid to cover. Season, cover and simmer about 2½ hours, or until tender. Adjust seasoning. Thicken gravy with flour mixed with water to form a smooth paste. Line baking dish with biscuit dough. Pour in cooked meat and gravy. Cover with additional biscuit dough. Bake in hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 30 minutes or until browned.

(Cooking time in this recipe is for utility beef. Choice and good grades of beef require less time.)

OVEN STEW

2 slices salt pork
 $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. beef, dried beef chuck
1 large onion
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. flour
1½ tsp. pepper
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. paprika
1 can condensed tomato soup
6 small onions
6 medium carrots
6 medium potatoes

Cube pork and brown with beef in frying pan. Remove to baking dish. Brown chopped onion in fat remaining in frying pan. Add flour, mix well and add water, tomato soup, salt, pepper and paprika. Cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour over meat. Add whole onion, carrots and potatoes. Cover and bake in a slow oven (350 deg. F.) for 3½ hours or simmer on top of range until the meat is tender.

(The cooking time in this recipe is for utility beef. Choice and good grades of beef require less time.)

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Monday—While on the subject of rumor and gossip, I would like to mention one persistent rumor which has come to me in many different forms ever since early last summer. It has absolutely no foundation in fact.

The first I heard of it was when I received several letters saying that certain Marines were writing home from the Pacific that they had heard that I advocated six months' quarantine for them after the war, because they would not be fit to associate with the "workers" at home.

IN A LATER version, the Marines were changed to Army men who had been out in the Pacific. When I went down to the Caribbean, last winter, I met this same story everywhere. Instead of being about the men in the Pacific, however, it was about men in the Caribbean.

Now, lo and behold! it turns up in my mail again, this time about paratroopers in the European area. In this version, I am alleged to have said that all "paratroopers are beasts and will have to be re-educated for living."

Obviously, of course, anyone who thought about this would realize that I would hardly want my own boys to be quarantined. I have my own boys and other friends in every branch of the service, and they have served in nearly every area, though none of them happens to be a paratrooper.

The story does me no harm, of course. The people who spread it are evidently too stupid to realize that my only concern would be that such a story would hurt the men themselves. I know of no one who does not want them home as soon as it is possible for them to get here.

I CAME DOWN to New York this morning to speak at the luncheon given by the women's division of the Federation of Jewish Charities and to try, during this week, to do a number of things which have accumulated while I have been in the country.

High Color Contrast Dress

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE very simple dress in neutral color or black is, as usual, one of the biggest entries in the styles. But, this fall, such dresses are likely to have effective drama added to them by high color contrast in trimmings or in sections of the dress itself. Vivid pink set on a black dress is one contrast I have seen in the best collections. Strong yellow or rich deep blue on neutral shades are two more color drama accents on the new dresses.

Miss Dulin has sketched one of the dresses using this high color contrast. It is from that gifted designer, Jo Copeland, and the black simplicity of the dress is made striking by a wide diagonal band of vivid pink set down the front from the right shoulder to the left hip, where it flares in a partial peplum.

Arlington JVA Sets Fast Pace

Frosts which popped open the little milkweed pods last week-end made speed even more urgent for the hundreds of JVA boys and girls throughout the state who are picking pods in their spare hours.

Once the pods are ripped by frost, they must be picked immediately or the fragile floss which is used in lining fliers' suits and servicemen's life jackets, is lost and allowed to go floating away on the air.

In Arlington alone, members of the JVA Wildcat corps who are racing to earn a $15 prize offered by the community Kiwanis club, have collected over 163,660 pods so far which they have hung to dry in a store-house contrived for that purpose.

These 100,000 pods will make more than 120 of the heavy life-jackets which are used to save our men torpedoes off their ships from drowning, plus a number of smaller life belts.

Boys and girls who have not gotten into the field already are urged to obtain special sacks for the purpose from their superintendent of schools or the principal of their own school and gather milkweed pods today.

Some soldier, sailor or Marine may find his life depends upon the jacket made with milkweed that your Junior Victory Army

Boston American, Sept. 26—19 corps is gathering or is allowing to go to waste. Help finish the milkweed harvest today!

The Lost Weekend

Based on the powerful, best-selling novel of five unforgettable days in a man's life

Gloria said, "My, we aren't chummy today."

While Sam opened a bottle, Don looked in the mirror.

In the store, he pretended to deliberate.

NOW that he had the whisky, Don did not drink it immediately. He permitted himself the luxury of ignoring it for a while; he lit a cigarette, took out and glanced through an old letter and began to hum. He glanced at a couple of strangers farther down the bar, aloof, and, as he thought, aristocratic. When he finally did get around to raising the glass to his lips, it was with an air of boredom that said, "Oh well, I suppose I might as well drink it, now that I've ordered it."

He thought of Wick and Helen. If they could see him now. Or perhaps they knew only too well what he was doing. Hell, why wouldn't they? It had happened so often.

Gloria sidled up and put a hand on his shoulder. Why in thunder should a 2nd ave. bar-and-grill attempt a "hostess?" She always asked for a cigarette, so he put his pack on the bar but he didn't answer her questions.

"My, we aren't chummy today. What's the matter?"

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I was—thinking." "Okay, I'll have a drink with you later." She left. His drink was finished and he had not felt it at all. He nodded to Sam and another guy was set before him. He was suddenly very low. He downed the drink and asked for another. While Sam opened a new bottle, he looked at his face in the mirror over the bar. The face showed all of its 33 years, no more. The forehead was good, the eyes dark and deep-set. The nostrils of the longish, aquiline nose were good, too; gave the face a keen look, like a thoroughbred. He liked the two deep lines that ran down either side of the mouth and the mustache was just big and black enough.

He picked up the glass and began to drink. Mirrors seemed to have taken up a hell of a lot of time in his life. He thought of the bathroom mirror at home, how he had looked into it for signs of maturity the night he had written the poem. He signaled to pour him another.

The afternoon slipped swiftly by. He thought of the brilliant story he would write—the title: "In a Glass." It would have everything in it: the wrench (the lost, lonely abandonment) when his father left home, the village, the pawnshops, the drinking, the foolish psychiatrist.

Gloria was there. He turned startled. "What's the time?" It was a quarter past 6. In a moment, he was in a panic to get home before Wick. He stopped in a liquor store to buy a pint, pretending to deliberate.

Braves Face Buccs

By BILL GRIMES

"Now that Frisch has used five pitchers in one day," declared Manager Bob Coleman after yesterday's 13-inning 5 to 4 victory over the Pirates, "we should do all right in this series."

The Braves won the hard way yesterday. They were leading 4 to 1, going into the eighth inning. Then, "Red" Barrett lost his stuff, or something, for after Rob Russell and Johnny Barrett had singled, Bob Elliott connected with his second home run of the afternoon and the game was all tied up and remained deadlocked until Phil Masi and Stu Hofferth broke it up in the 13th.

Rip Sewell started for the Pirates but gave way to Cucurullo in the seventh. For three rounds, Cucurullo blew the Braves down in order. But, in the 10th, he developed the jitters and Starr took over to stop the threat. Rescigno was Onkel Frank's fourth hurler but he finished with "Preacher" Roe, who was to have pitched this afternoon.

Manager Bob Coleman will send Nate Andrews after the Pirates this afternoon. And, now that Roe saw action yesterday, Manager Frisch probably will send the veteran Max Butcher to the mound for the second game of the series.

A. L. Set for One Game Playoff

Pres. Will Harridge had the American League constitution out for an airing today, studying the rules relating to a pennant race tie as the Browns again settled down in first place, deadlocked with the Tigers. The rule book said a one-game playoff would determine the winner and the site of the tilt should be determined by the toss of a coin.

Both Steve O'Neill and Luke Sewell were said to be polishing up two-headed coins.

Harridge was expected to make an early announcement as the possibility of a deadlock increased.

Chances were against the Brownies sticking up there as a four-game series with the persistent Yankees follows two more games with Boston. Detroit has Washington coming in when the Tigers finally get rid of Connie Mack's troublesome A's after two more tilts. Each team has six games to play.

Nelson Potter put the Brownies back in a tie by stopping Boston, 3-0 with two hits, singles in the third inning. Chet Laabs and Rookie Babe Martin from Toledo, who would not be eligible for the World Series, if and when, were the hitting stars.

place position. The A's, who belted the Yanks out of the lead 10 days ago, toppled Detroit, 2-1, yesterday on the four-hit chugging of Lanky Russ Christopher. Philadelphia thus took an 11-9 season scores edge over the Bengals.

Rufe Gentry, who went to the hill when Stubby Overmire complained of arm trouble, saw his four-game win streak smashed.

The Yankees stuck in three three games back, trimming Chicago, 3-1 in 12 innings and 5-4 in regulation distance.

The Cardinals scored three unearned runs to mark up win No. 102 by a 3-1 edge over Brooklyn.
